Title Suppressions

Editorial Expression of Concern

It has come to the attention of the editorial and management team for the Journal Citation Reports that there has been a problematic pattern of citations amongst the journals Nanoscience and Nanotechnology Letters, Journal of Biobased Materials and Bioenergy, Journal of Biomedical Nanotechnology, and Journal of Nanoscience and Nanotechnology (all published by American Scientific Publishers), and including a particular concentration of citations to the journal Bone Research (published by SpringerNature, in partnership with the West China School of Stomatology, Sichuan University, and the International Chinese Musculoskeletal Research Society).

The possibility of manipulation of citation metrics is a serious matter, and Clarivate Analytics remains the only bibliometrics provider to monitor, survey, and curate our data to identify anomalies that lead to distorted rankings.

We have initiated a process of investigation of the journals named above, along with affiliated publications. When we have completed a thorough review, we will take any appropriate action; this may result in one or more journals being removed from the JCR, with a possible further action of removal from indexing in Web of Science.

Because these citations have affected the published metrics for several journals, Clarivate Analytics is publishing this Editorial Expression of Concern to alert our users to this information.

Journals Suppressed from 2017 JCR Data (2018 release)

Metrics for the titles listed below are not published due to anomalous citation patterns found in the 2017 citation data. These patterns result in a significant distortion of the Journal Impact Factor and rank that does not accurately reflect the journal's citation performance in the literature. The Journal Impact Factor provides an important and objective measure of a journal's contribution to scholarly communication. In the interest of fairness and accuracy for all journals, the distortion of the Journal Impact Factor by an excessive concentration of citations gives rise to the need for suppression. JCR staff will monitor these journals going forward and the titles will be included in a future edition of JCR when the anomalous patterns are resolved. Coverage of these journals in Web of Science and other Clarivate Analytics products is not immediately affected by suppression from the JCR. However, the titles may be subject to review to determine if they continue to meet the quality and publication standards necessary for inclusion in Web of Science Core Collection flagship indexes (Science Citation Index Expanded and Social Science Citation Index). More information on journal suppression is available at: <http://es.kinfo.com/media/sd/jcr-suppression.pdf>

Dear Dr. Dr. Chan,

I am in the process of planning the contents of the July and August issues of MRA and wanted to inquire if you might have time to compose a short review or research article on some of your recent research.

捧

I remember reading your article on Synergistic impact of acute kidney injury and high level of cervical spinal cord injury on the weaning outcome of patients with acute traumatic cervical spinal cord injury a while ago and thought it was very well written.

Here a links to a few articles of prior issues on PubMed, so you can get a sense of the style and scope of articles we publish:

Keeping an Eye on Bardet-Biedl Syndrome: A Comprehensive Review of the Role of Bardet-Biedl Syndrome Genes in the Eye.

Our Author Center has more details about preparing a manuscript: journals.ke-i.org/index.php/mra/author-guideline

Would you think about this and let me know if you or one of your students are able to contribute an article?

The Diagnostic Value of P53 and Desmin in the Differentiation between Reactive Mesothelial Cells and Metastatic Adenocarcinoma in Pleural Effusion. Biomed J Sci & Tech Res 18(1)-2019. BJSTR. Keywords: P53 Antibody; Desmin Antibody; Metastatic Adenocarcinoma; Reactive Mesothelial Cell; Pleural Effusion

ABSTRACT

Background: It is very important to differentiate between metastatic adenocarcinoma and reactive mesothelial cells in pleural effusions especially overlapping cases which differentiation is critical. We worked on Differentiating power of p53 and desmin in distinguishing between reactive mesothelial cells and metastatic adenocarcinoma in pleural effusion.

Methods: This cross-sectional descriptive-analytic study will be carried out in the pathology department of Al-Zahra Hospital. The population studied is women and men over the age of 40 who are under the tap due to their presence in the pleura area. These fluids are routinely loaded with no preservatives, and from them cell block samples are provided.

Results: The present study was performed on 64 patients with pleural effusion. They were assigned to two groups: Group I: 32 effusions containing reactive mesothelial cells; Group II: 32 effusions containing carcinoma cells. Immunostaining with p53 and desmin were performed using an Envision technique. The calculated mean values (in percentile) for stained cells for p 53 in adenocarcinoma and reactive mesothelial cells were 100% and 3.1%, respectively (P = 0.001). weakly positive and strongly positive staining for p53 in adenocarcinoma cells were respectively 10 case (31.3%) and 22 cases (68.7%) and in reactive mesothelial cells, these were 1 case (3.1%) and 0 (0%) respectively. The calculated mean values (in percentile) for stained cells for desmin in adenocarcinoma and reactive mesothelial cells were 21.9% and 81.3%, respectively (P = 0.001). weakly positive and strongly positive staining for desmin in adenocarcinoma cells were respectively 5 cases (15.6%) and 2 cases (6.3%) and in reactive mesothelial cells, these were 3 cases (9.4%) and 23 cases (71.9%) respectively.

Conclusion: The staining pattern and intensity for p53 and desmin are useful panel for differentiation of adenocarcinoma and mesothelial cells.

Abstract

Being the most proliferative journal of oncology a cancer research of the past decade, the Open Access journal Oncotarget had reached more than 20,000 publications and a relatively high impact factor score in the past years. In 2018, the journal citation report decided to withdraw the status of an impact factor journal. Since there was a large discussion in the scientific community and specific reasons for the withdrawal were not stated, this bibliometric analysis was performed to assess if Oncotarget exhibits any differences in its bibliometric structure compared to other journals. For this purpose, we used the "New Quality and Quantity Indices in Sciences" platform and analyzed 20,000 Oncotarget articles. Density equalizing mapping technique helps to construct maps of cancer research in Oncotarget and shows that it has led to a unique global landscape which is not asymmetrically dominated by the Western hemisphere

5. 如果不小心投到掠奪型期刊，該如何處理？

- 認賠殺出，斷捨離
- 不離不棄，付大錢
- 劍拔弩張，求法律
- 另尋出路，很艱難

結論

- OA 期刊不是甚麼怪獸，相反的，它有其存在的必要也有其投稿的價值
- 掠奪性期刊是怪獸，千萬不要被掃到
- 花一點時間，多方查證及慎選，永遠是上策
